

FAMILIES AS PARTNERS IN LEARNING

IN-SERVICE FACE TO FACE WORKSHOP

Research demonstrates that parent and family involvement significantly contribute to improved child outcomes.

The National Quality Framework and the Early Years Learning Framework asks educators to go beyond traditional parent involvement activities to form respectful supportive relationships with families (NQS Standard 6.1).

This workshop intends to address the importance of working in partnerships with families while exploring some of the barriers and challenges that currently exist. Additionally, this workshop explores the different parenting and communication styles that impact on these partnerships.
